by SUNRISE

WATCH THE VIDEO

"When are you available for lunch next week?"

If this question makes you cringe just at the idea of the never-ending email thread that it's about to start, you're in for a treat.

After more than a year of hard work, we might have found a solution for you to spend less time in your emails scheduling meetings and more time doing things you actually enjoy doing. Still interested?

Today, we're introducing Meet, the fastest way to schedule a one-to-one. Meet is a keyboard for Android and iOS that lets you select available time slots in your calendar without leaving the app you're in and send them to anyone through a simple link, even if they don't use Sunrise.

No more back-and-forth via email, no more time lost switching to your calendar to find the right times, your calendar is always just one tap away. You can read the full story on our blog.

To get Meet, just update the app and we'll take it from there. We're excited to hear your thoughts!

With Love,

Hey! It's you! 🥰

Did I just catch you signing up for a pre-launch discount on 3D for Designers?

That means you understand the value of a good deal. That's a valuable trait!

Not everyone got that. RESPECT.

Alright, let me get you into our system here. Juuust a second.

**scribbles on printer paper**

**dunks calculator in coffee**

**staples hands together**

Ow! Jeebus. Okay, you're all set.

Your 50% discount is now reserved and drizzled in chocolate.

I'm gonna hold onto this for you until RIGHT before pre-registration is open, okay? I don't want you to eat it.

While I'm getting things together...

What do you want to get out of this course?

Let me know! More details are coming your way soon.

Yours truly and interdimensionally,

Devon ✨

P.S. I'll send you a heads up before everyone else when pre-registration is fixing to open. Expect the lowdown on the course along the way. I'll be posting sneak previews on Twitter, too!

P.P.S. It takes courage and curiosity to learn something new. Most people spend years just kinda-sorta thinking about it, then convince themselves it was never worth it in the first place. So, seriously: respect.

Hello Mike,

Ankit Gupta and I created the first version of the Pulse app in 2010 as part of a class project at Stanford University. Our original goal was simple – to help you organize all your favorite publishers in one place and see the content in a rich, visual, mobile format. You are among 30 million users who joined us for that journey, and we're truly thankful and honored for that.

But we didn't want to stop there. Once you had all your content in one place, we wanted to take it a step further and help you focus on just the right content. We wanted to save you time, and give you highly personalized, relevant news so you'd always be in the know. This is precisely why we joined LinkedIn, which has 360M+ professionals on the platform and a stellar relevance team that could help us crack this challenge.

Today, we're excited to announce a brand new Pulse app, designed and developed from the ground up. The reimagined Pulse will provide truly customized, daily news, powered by your professional world. It's personalized just for you – based on who you are and who you know. If you are a marketer in a technology company, we'll tell you what other marketers are reading and sharing, and what's trending inside your company. In order to focus on continual innovation, we will be retiring the existing Pulse app by the end of the year, but you can keep using it until then. We will remind you about the transition as the time approaches.

We hope you'll join us on this new journey to make LinkedIn Pulse your daily news source, and the only one powered by your professional world. The new apps are now available on the App Store for iPhone version 8.0+ and Google Play Store for Android version 4.0.3+. As some of our most loyal users, we encourage you to check out our new app.

Ankit and I truly appreciate your loyalty throughout the years and are excited for you to join us on our next journey with Pulse. Your feedback is important to us, so please share it at pulse-support@linkedin.com. You can also visit our Help Center and read more about the launch on our blog.

Best,

Akshay Kothari, Pulse co-founder

SILVERLININGS

>Welcome to the new, quarterly newsletter for CrashPlan users. We'll keep you up-to-date on the latest at Code42 and offer tips to get the most out of CrashPlan. We welcome your suggestions, comments and questions on CrashPlan, Code42, or life, the universe and everything.

Lifehacker agrees, CrashPlan is essential.

CrashPlan made the 2014 Lifehacker Pack - a yearly snapshot of the best apps for both Mac and Windows. According to Lifehacker, "It's our preferred bulletproof backup system because even the paid tiers are cheaper than other options. You should backup your system often. CrashPlan is the easiest way to do it...set it, forget it, and relax."

Serving Justice to Cryptolocker.

Cryptolocker is an insidious new malware that holds your files ransom for thousands of dollars by attacking your machine and encrypting every file, rendering them unreadable. Mark, a Cryptolocker victim, managed to avoid the agony of data (and money) loss thanks to CrashPlan.

Still cloudy on the idea of backup?

File sync is in fact NOT backup. Let us clear things up.

Sync requires manual intervention.

Backup is non-destructive and invisible (like CrashPlan).

Sync does not protect you from accidental file deletion.

Backup saves every version forever.

Sync lets you control who accesses your files.

Backup is secure to protect your files from others.

Helpful Tech Tip

Apple recently announced it will cancel development of Aperture and iPhoto. Users can migrate their current library into the new Photos editing app included with Mac OS X 10. We recommend running a backup before starting any data migration. Read our article on tips for backing up your library before the move.

iPhoto & Aperture Backup Tips

Did you know? To conserve laptop battery power, CrashPlan can be set to automatically stop running when the battery reaches a certain percent.

Ross C.'s Silver Lining

"Saved by CrashPlan (again), this time I saved my data from a corrupt hard drive. I had a month ago and didn't realize the updated copy was corrupt until today. Logged onto the CrashPlan service remotely, tried a recent copy which it turns out was also busted but then grabbed the previous version and had a great working copy again. Thanks, CrashPlan!"

Tracks, reimagined!

Today, we are releasing an improved Tracks experience that we think you're going to love!

We are listening!

We appreciate and value your feedback and today we're excited to show you the results of our efforts to improve the Tracks experience. Here are a couple highlights:

Visualize your journey

You'll finally be able to see the big picture and how all of these courses fit together! You'll immediately notice that you will now explore your Track as a hierarchical, tiered tree. Each course is now presented as familiar cards, grouped into tiers. As you work your way through your Track, you'll unlock new tiers of courses on the tree. We've also added useful cues like a current course indicator in your progress bar and current course card.

Stay on Track

Scheduling is here! In addition to seeing time estimates for each Track, you'll also be able to give yourself a deadline to complete your current Track and we'll let you know how long you will need to spend learning each day in order to meet your goal.

So...what's next?

This iteration of Tracks is just the start. We are already working on more improvements and new features for Tracks in the coming months! Stay tuned!

Hey Matthew, you might have seen we're giving away 100 more "Quit Your Day Job" shirts. You pay for shipping we give you the shirt. Tell a friend, there's only 100 shirts in this print run, are you still wearing the XL shirt we sent? It's so soft!

Why are we so nice? Because we want to sell you stuff :)

- Autopilot Bookkeeping - let our accounting firm handle your business' bookkeeping.
- LessFilms - Your company/product will sell more if you have a well crafted video. Let us make one for you.
- LessChurn - start reducing churn in your SaaS product in one hour.

Introducing Peak

The easy way to keep track of what everyone is working on.

For the past year, we've been working on a new product called Peak. We've been testing it with a small group of companies for the past couple months, but today we're excited to share it with the world.

Peak is all about cutting down on workplace distraction. It hooks into all the existing services that your team uses (Dropbox, GitHub, Basecamp, etc) and automatically keeps the whole team up-to-date on what everyone is working on. It eliminates the need for shoulder taps, status emails, and all that not-so-fun stuff, and lets your team focus on their work instead. If your company values output over punching a clock, Peak is for you.

We think you're going to love it. Give it a shot and let us know what you think.

 Try Peak for Free

About Peak

Over the last few years, we've started to experience the growing pains of having a large team. It became harder to keep track of which projects everyone was working on and what was being accomplished. We tried holding update meetings, keeping timesheets, and even did a lot of shoulder-tapping as a way to see what people were up to. Those methods quickly fell apart or were found to be too disruptive.

So, we set out to build an app that solved those problems.

Instead of asking everyone to manually post updates on what's happening, Peak is fully automated. You simply connect the services you're already working in, and Peak turns your team's activity into stories. This cuts down on interruptions, and leaves your team to focus on what's important.

Another key feature of Peak is Insights. Peak uses your activity data to show you patterns in your team's workflow. Learn things like what time of the day your team is most focused, how your work cycle changes over time, and more.

We think you're going to love it. Give it a shot and let us know what you think.
